County Leaders Will Learn Technological Advances & Cyber-Related Trends at MACo Summer Conference, Hogan to Deliver Closing Address

Annapolis, MD (07/05/2016) – Protecting the sensitive data of Maryland’s county residents and providing responsible, safe, and advanced county services – both online and off – will be the focus of MACo’s 2016 Summer Conference.

Local government officials make attending the MACo Summer Conference a priority because they gain knowledge and understanding of complicated local government issues. Participants share ideas, meet with strategic partners, and find solutions to challenges at home.

This annual event attracts 2,000+ stakeholders in local government. From U.S. Senators to county officials to the vendors selling your county their office supplies, everyone with an interest in Maryland’s county government will be at the Roland Powell Convention Center in Ocean City on August 17-20, 2016.

The conference is themed “Cyber Solutions: Counties in the Digital Age.” The focus of the conference is on digital trends, cyber threats, and technological solutions for county officials and professionals. Among many topics offered, participants can expect to see demonstrations of drones, hear from experts about autonomous vehicles, and talk about the implementation of texting 9-1-1.

Also on the agenda, among many other topics, are social media use and telecommuting for county employees, environmental updates, protecting children from cybercrime, concussions, funding methods for technology, and a Q&A session on medical cannabis. Participants will have two opportunities to be certified to administer Naloxone, the opioid overdose treatment drug.

Washington County Commissioner and MACo President John Barr commented “Over the past two months, as Executive Director Michael Sanderson and I have been making individual county visits, we found informative and useful information that I feel certain can be helpful in a collaborative effort to serve the residents of this great state. I encourage government officials from all levels to gather in Ocean City to share this information and knowledge and interact with the Governor's talented staff, while renewing old friendships and developing new ones, which will allow each and every one of us to be a better public servant."

Updates will be given by the Departments of Natural Resources and the Environment. U.S. Senator Ben Cardin will host a town hall forum and U.S. Representative (and MACo Past President) Dutch Ruppersberger will moderate a general session on cybersecurity budgeting. Former U.S. Senator Paul Sarbanes has been invited to be the featured guest of MACo's televised one-on-one conference interview session. Governor Larry Hogan is confirmed to deliver the closing address of the conference.

A 250-booth tradeshow will enable participants to talk with vendors and partners who can help them save money on government supplies and services. Vendors include providers of health insurance, cable service, office supplies, emergency communication equipment, and more – nearly everything needed to keep a county running smoothly is available in MACo's exhibit hall.

New this year is MACo's Tech Expo on Wednesday, August 17. This one-day event will give participants a chance to experience deeper technology-focused sessions and a special tech-only exhibit show with live demonstrations of the products and services.

There is truly something for everyone at the MACo Summer Conference – officials and professionals from all levels of government service will leave the event feeling energized, informed, and ready to lead, balanced on the cutting edge of digital and cyber solutions.

Attorneys in the Matrix: Legal Best Practices Against Black Hat Threats

Hosted by MACo's Attorneys Affiliate

County legal and liability issues have grown increasingly complicated in the cyber age. Counties need to have robust best practices in place to protect both themselves and their citizens from "black hat" threats. Threats can be external, such as outside hacking and ransomware attacks, or internal by insider or privileged users. Panelists will outline these threats and discuss the best legal and insurance practices to ensure counties are able to minimize risk and liability to both themselves and any affected citizens.

Hosted by MACo's Tourism Directors

Maryland's tourism industry brings millions of visitors to our state annually. Significant State and county resources have been devoted to marketing Maryland destinations in a way that will reach today's tech-savvy traveler. From a microsite that offers virtual tours of our scenic byways, to social media, apps, and campaigns to encourage tourists to engage with local attractions and vendors, Maryland's tourism industry is innovatively reaching out to bring people in. Speakers will discuss the digital side of tourism product development and marketing with a focus on how travelers consume digital marketing messages and what that means for your county.

9-1-1: The Next Generation — Everything Will Change, Except the Numbers

Next Generation 9-1-1 will allow our public safety answering points to receive texts and photos, triangulate mobile phone caller positions, and transfer phone calls to the correct public safety answering point. In this session, state representatives will describe how to ensure a safe, efficient transition to Next Generation 9-1-1 in Maryland, and any technical, fiscal, and policy issues that must first be addressed. County representatives will describe challenges and successes of maintaining critical 9-1-1 services.

Outbreak! Responding to the Zika Threat

Hosted by MACo's Environmental Health and Health Officer Affiliates

While the Zika virus has made international news headlines over the last year, few people truly understand what the virus is and the role county governments play in preventing its spread. For example, mosquito control is an important local responsibility that can significantly reduce the spread of Zika. If an outbreak does occur, counties can use Geographic Information System (GIS) and related technology to monitor and track the virus. Panelists will provide an overview of the Zika virus, including its symptoms, treatment, and transmission; county actions and responsibilities to combat Zika; and the use of GIS technology to track and manage identified cases.

Live Long & Prosper: Maintaining and Funding Modern Technology

Hosted by MACo's Budget & Finance Affiliate

Good governance requires good tools — in modern government, many of these are technology tools. Powerful databases, analytical instruments, geographic systems, and public portals can all improve customer service and accountability — but invariably come at a cost. In the modern government budget, how do we best prioritize and manage these investments? How do we fit non-traditional models like software-as-a-service and bring-your-own-device into a conventional government budget setting? How do we prudently arm our professionals with the tools they need, in a manner best serving the taxpayers? Our panel will investigate these and related questions facing a modern, customer-focused government.

To Catch a Predator: Protecting Children from Cybercrimes

Hosted by MACo's Human Services Affiliate

Expanded internet connections and the wide-spread use of smart phones and tablets has made accessing the internet easier than ever - especially for teens. A Pew Research Report found that 92% of teens report going online daily. There are a lot of positives to youth internet access and fun to be had on social networking sites and online apps. Through facilitated discussion, video, and practical demonstrations, participants will learn more about how officials are taking action to promote online safety and protect children from technology facilitated crimes.

Hard Hits: The Science & Safeguards Behind Concussions

Hosted by MACo's Parks & Recreation Affiliate

Concussions are now viewed as priority injuries that, if not identified and treated, can result in significant physical, cognitive, and emotional health problems. As science continues to better understand the serious effects of concussions, athletic national governing bodies have taken actions to respond to the threat they pose and the Maryland General Assembly has passed legislation requiring counties, schools, and leagues to follow certain education, reporting, and treatment requirements. Panelists will discuss the current medical understanding of concussions, changes in best practices (rules, player techniques, etc.) to minimize their occurrence and protect players, and the implementation of education and reporting requirements required under Maryland Law.

Cybersecurity on a Shoestring Budget

While the federal government works on big-picture solutions, state and local government agencies are under tremendous pressure to secure critical data, infrastructure and services. The massive amount of valuable data housed by county agencies -- Social Security and driver's license numbers, credit card information, and health-care records, to name a few -- is an attractive target for cybercriminals seeking financial gain. This session will describe where counties can make progress toward better cyber protection, even under these circumstances. Subjects will include employee training and leveraging cost-effective tools and partnership opportunities to maintain data integrity.

Land Use in a Virtual World

Hosted by MACo's Planners Affiliate

Technology continues to profoundly shape how county land use and building project decisions are made. Proposed projects can be visualized in unprecedented detail through the use of 3D rendering, and paperless plan review systems can increase efficiencies and reduce costs. However, the rise of virtual businesses, such as AirBnB, can pose challenges to traditional permitting systems and may require new and innovative approaches. Panelists will discuss these new tools and challenges and provide examples of their use.

Counties Confront Substance Abuse: What's Now, What's New, and What's Next

Hosted by MACo's Health Officers Affiliate

Our communities continue to grapple with drug abuse and addiction. As the heroin and opioid crisis persists and emerging threats arise, local governments dig through data and search for solutions to treat those in need and to educate others in the hopes of preventing them from succumbing to addiction. In this session, get up-to-date information on what is happening across the state as counties share the latest statistics, effective programs, and innovative proposals for addressing drug abuse.

Beam Me Up – Telecommuting and County Government

Hosted by MACo's Human Resources Affiliate

Telecommuting, or allowing employees to work in offices located off-site and within employees' homes, is becoming more popular. Workplace flexibility is a way to entice employees into county employment, improve business continuity, create cost-savings, and increase eco-friendliness. Telecommuting also poses risks and downsides, including lack of oversight, security concerns, fairness and morale among employees, and loss of on-site brainstorming. This session will explore the most effective telecommuting policies for county government performance and employee satisfaction.

It's a Trap! 10 Tricks Targeting Your Identity & Information

Hosted by MACo's Aging Affiliate

Identity theft is one of the fastest growing crimes in the country, affecting nearly ten million Americans a year, and Marylanders are not immune. Identity thieves may target older adults whose social isolation, loneliness, and memory loss make them particularly vulnerable. Examples of identity theft include when a thief uses your personal identifying information to open credit accounts in your name or to evade criminal liability. Hear ways that the State is seeking to help victims of identity theft address their problems, and to help all consumers protect themselves from identity thieves. In this session, county officials will learn advice to share with their constituents about how to protect themselves from ID thieves using, or continuing to use, your personal information, and how to address some of the issues that identity theft causes, such as dealing with credit card companies or collection agencies.

Learn to Save a Life – Naloxone Training for Opioid Overdoses
Hosted by MACo's Health Officers Affiliate

Participants will receive in-person, hands-on training and certification in recognizing and responding to opioid overdose with naloxone. Naloxone is a prescription medication that safely and effectively reverses an opioid (heroin and prescription pain relievers) overdose. Upon completion of the training, participants will receive a certificate and a kit containing educational materials and the medication.
(This training is also scheduled for Saturday morning to give you multiple chances to take advantage of this opportunity!)

From Dewey Decimal to WWW: Libraries Online
Hosted by MACo's Administrators Affiliate

Maryland Libraries are leaders in bringing the latest technology to our communities. They are designated hubs of broadband connectivity, striving to close the digital divide in our communities and they are a place of learning and professional development. With the launch of MakerSpaces, Innovation Labs, and STEM classes, residents come to libraries to create original content and train on skills critical to compete in today's economy. Library members range from toddlers learning to read, to entrepreneurs learning to use 3D printers. Learn more about today's Maryland libraries.

Are We There Yet? Autonomous Vehicles and the Future of Transportation
Hosted by MACo's Engineers Affiliate

Autonomous vehicles, also known as self-driving cars, have advanced control systems that detect their surroundings and interpret the sensory information to successfully navigate passengers to their destination. While we are not yet in the age of fleets of Knight Rider KITTs or fleets of fully autonomous vehicles chauffeuring us to and fro, the concept of self-driving cars is slowly but surely coming to fruition. As numerous companies and research organizations work to develop prototypes, government officials prepare for their arrival. In this session, learn more about autonomous vehicles as well as the legal, policy, safety, and infrastructure developments underway as state and local officials plan for the future of driverless transportation.

Mentally Ill and Incarcerated: A Criminal Justice Crisis
Hosted by MACo's Corrections Affiliate
Sponsored by Siemens Industry, Inc.

Did you know that 64% of jail inmates have a mental illness? Or that more than half of mentally ill inmates used drugs or alcohol at the time of their crimes? The incarceration of the mentally ill is reaching crisis levels in our county jails. Jails are increasingly becoming the de facto institutions to treat and house individuals with complicated and acute mental health needs — a role they are not designed to play. In this session learn more about the challenges local jails face handling this critical population and innovative steps being taken to reduce the number of people with mental illness in jails.

3:15 pm - 4:15 pm | GOVERNOR'S CABINET RECEPTION
Sponsored by the Maryland Building Industry Association

To Boldly Go...Toward Better Modern Schools
This year, the Presiding Officers of the Maryland General Assembly formed a Commission to review the State's school construction policies and make recommendations for more efficient and effective school construction practices into the future. This is the first major review of school construction since the 2004 Task Force to Study Public School Facilities, and it comes in the wake of dramatic cost increases in school construction. In this Session, attendees will hear an update on the 2016 21st Century School Facilities Commission from the Commission Chair, Martin Knott, President of Knott Mechanical, and MACo's Commission Representative, Jan Gardner, County Executive, Frederick County prior to the release of the Commission's report in December.

Surviving the Information Supernova:
Open Government & Performance Management
Striving for customer service in the public sector, counties leverage their best efforts to create open and accountable public services. Measuring outcomes, harnessing "big data," and creating open platforms can improve your citizens' trust in, and support for, your county's efforts. Stakeholders from large and small jurisdictions will discuss best practices in performance management, and chart the road ahead in this fast-moving field.

11:00 am - 11:15 am | COFFEE BREAK

11:15 am - 12:15 pm | GOVERNOR'S CLOSING ADDRESS
